Those in charge of the West End Mission desire to extend thanks to all who so generously patronized the Society Minstrels, and to those young ladies and gentlemen who took part. They especially desire to express their appreciation of the services of Messrs. John Pollitt and T. Reed Chunn. Mr. Pollitt has had extensive experience behind the footlights and the success of the show was due to his expert training. He is a first class end man and all wish him unlimited success, which they feel sure he will attain. The artistic setting of the stage was due to the discriminating taste of Mr. Chunn, while the beautiful scenery in the "Choir Boy," all of which he painted, shows his wonderful skill in that line. Both these young gentlemen worked zealously and earnestly for the success of the minstrels and the managers of the school feel happy in publicly recording them the thanks due.

CLEAR CASE.

Detectives Who Have Been at Work on the Goebel Case Talk.

Say Evidence Is So Strong That Everybody Will Be Convinced of Guilt of the Assassins.

[Courier-Journal.]

Detectives "Dee" Armstrong and Will Harding, who assisted in working up the cases against the alleged assassins of Gov. Goebel, have returned from Frankfort, and will remain here until they are subpoenaed to appear at the Capital to testify against the prisoners or to give testimony to the grand jury. Both officers have done clever work, and they are well satisfied with the cases they say they will be able to make against the men now under arrest.

To a Courier-Journal reporter, Detective Armstrong said: "We have sufficient witnesses and evidence to hang some people. The best part about the whole business is that when the cases come to trial and all the witnesses are introduced the different stages of the plot to kill Goebel will be made so plain that there will not be a man, woman or child in the State who will not believe that the men are guilty. The implication of every man will be proven so thoroughly that no one can doubt his guilt."

"Do you mean to say that it can be proven that all the men now under arrest are guilty?"

"I did not specify," replied he. "I simply said that we would hang several men, and when the cases against them are made out by the prosecution no one will say that they should not hang."

"The man who actually shot Goebel has not been arrested, but he is known. I can say positively that he is not a negro. He is a white man and a Republican. Furthermore, two or more witnesses will be introduced who will swear that they saw this man shoot Goebel. I believe the evidence against him will be so overwhelming that he will tell the whole story."

"Now, as strange as it may seem, in my opinion Youtsey is more guilty than either the man who concocted the plot to kill Goebel or the man who fired the fatal shot. The public may doubt this, but when all the facts are made known it will be found that Youtsey's connection with the conspiracy puts him in the foreground all the time."

When asked if Wharton Golden's story was true, Detective Armstrong said:

"I honestly believe that he told the whole truth. He talked like a man who knew he had been in bad company, and wanted to wash his hands of the mess. And then his statements are corroborated by others, and the whole story dovetails in every particular."

"Will there be any more arrests?"

"As I said, the murderer has not yet been taken into custody. Then, there may be several others arrested as conspirators, but the grand jury will probably bring indictments against these if they are not arrested before that time."

"Were you one of those connected with the prosecution who claimed that 'Tallow Dick' Combs did the shooting?"

"I was not," replied Armstrong firmly. "I have never believed Combs was the man that shot Goebel. If he did, the evidence now in the possession of the prosecution will never convict him."

The Louisville officers met numerous obstacles in their work. It is said that many persons have gone so far in order to get credit themselves for securing information as to try to throw the Louisville men off.
